REPORT:

1.0 The Research and Its Purpose

The research report, “Homeless Youth in Waterloo Region: A Report on Two Pilot Projects” was prepared by the Cambridge and North Dumfries Social Planning Council in cooperation with staff at Argus Shelter for Young People and Reaching Our Outdoor Friends (ROOF). The research report summarizes the data gathered from the Youth Outreach Project funded through the Provincial Off the Street Into Shelter (OSIS) Fund and the Project Warmth temporary youth shelter funded through the Provincial Homelessness Initiative Fund (PHIF). The research was undertaken to ascertain the scope of youth homelessness in Waterloo Region as well as the characteristics of this population in order to gain a greater depth of understanding and work towards improved programs and services within the Region.

2.0 Limitations and Insights

It is important to highlight both the limitations of this report as well as the insights that have been gained. In terms of limitations, it is possible the data may be over or under-reported as it was gathered largely from self-reports and some peer group situations. The data collection tools were in a pilot test phase and have since been clarified. Information provided by the youth was not verified (e.g. school attendance or involvement with Family and Children’s Services) and some questions relied on youth’s memory from a week or month previous. Youth were not randomly sampled but were either youth contacted by the Outreach Workers or youth who stayed at Project Warmth and were willing to participate in a focus group. This report simply provides a summary of the data from a limited sample and does not analyze the “why” of the data.

The research report does confirm that there are number of homeless youth in Waterloo Region. A total of 90<sup>1</sup> different youth were assigned a unique identifier from those contacted on the street or in a shelter between November 2001 and March 30, 2002. A preliminary review of the literature on youth homelessness indicates that the information gathered through this research report is similar to findings from other studies across North America.

<sup>1</sup> While 90 youth were able to be assigned a unique identifier, there were a total of 45 different youth who stayed at Project Warmth during this time period and a total of 928 street contacts (598 of which were age 17 or younger) made by the Youth Outreach Workers during this time period.

It was found that of the youth surveyed, there was roughly a 60/40 male/female split. The greatest precipitating factor to being on the street was family conflict. Many of the youth reported that they were not attending school, but were involved with Family and Children's Services and/or were involved with the criminal justice system. A large number had no identification. Most were staying with friends, in a shelter or in the family home within the previous night, week and month. It was interesting to note the lower levels of employment reported from those at shelters/drop-ins than those at-risk youth who attend school - 14% versus 37%. Also the average age of the school group was younger. Youth surveyed through the schools identified that at age 12, 13, and 14 they held jobs such as babysitting or a paper route which would be difficult to undertake for a young person who does not have stable housing.

The report confirms and reinforces that youth homelessness is a complex issue that requires supports along a continuum in order to provide flexibility and different options dependent on individual youth circumstances and stage of homelessness. Youth surveyed identified the following needs and desires:

- Food, clothing, transportation and showers
- Youth specific shelter (co-ed) with a harm reduction approach (low structure, flexible) in Kitchener and Cambridge
- 24 hour drop-ins and access to meals including a youth specific drop-in centre in Cambridge
- C Staff at shelters and drop-in's understand street life and be well informed
- C One-month stay limit at shelter
- C More supports for youth who have been abused

It appears that the youth surveyed tended not to identify shelter as an immediate need because they had somewhere to stay (a friend's couch, emergency shelter, abandoned building etc.). However, this housing is often temporary, inadequate or unsafe. It is worth noting that the youth who accessed Project Warmth for longer periods of time (i.e. 20 nights or more) actually identified emergency/ transitional shelter as a priority. While youth seem to be aware of services in their immediate area, the report highlighted that many of the youth surveyed were not well aware of all the services available to them throughout the Region.

3.0 Next Steps

The Region's Youth Homelessness Coordinating Group (see Appendix 1 for a list of members) will use this research report to inform their continued work. In the early spring of 2003, a comprehensive report on youth homelessness that includes a literature review, further data from the projects, a gaps and strengths analysis of services in the Region, as well as recommended areas for action will be developed.

CORPORATE STRATEGIC PLAN:

Regional support for this data analysis report addresses two priorities within the Corporate Strategic Plan:

- identifying service gaps and developing a local response

- ensuring appropriate interventions and services are in place for the
- vulnerable and at risk children, youth, adults, seniors within the community

FINANCIAL IMPLICATIONS:

Both of these projects were funded under two separate provincial funds. Project Warmth (operated by Argus Residence) received $50,666 through the Provincial Homelessness Initiative Fund (PHIF) and the Outreach Worker project (supported by ROOF) received $28,100 from the Off the Street and Into Shelter Fund (OSIS).

The PHIF was announced by the Province in 1999 as part of the package of funding to Consolidated Municipal Service Managers (CMSMs) to address homelessness. The Region received $180,000 in funding under this initiative and Regional Council, over the past 4 years has approved a number of projects under this funding. Council is currently requesting that the Province increase this amount in light of the scope of the issue of homelessness in our community.

The OSIS funding, a newer addition to the Province's package of homelessness funding, was originally funded by the Province on a 100% basis or $28,100 however the funding for subsequent years will be on an 80/20 basis. Through community consultation youth homelessness was identified as the priority for OSIS funding in 2001 and 2002.

The research report prepared by the Social Planning Council of Cambridge and North Dumfries was funded by the Region through the one time allocation by Council to support planning initiatives at the regional level.
